Penta Fund

The fund's NAV recorded a slight decline in February due to operating costs exceeding revenues.

At the same time, the Penta Real Estate portfolio realised several milestones in the development of key projects in February. This strategic move marks a further expansion of operations in London, where Penta Real Estate, in partnership with Ballymore, is embarking on its third joint venture – The Brentford Project Phase II, comprising 373 apartments. The partnership is currently working towards the construction of more than 1,000 apartments with a total value of around €1 billion, further strengthening the company position in the London market.

In the Czech Republic, Penta Real Estate expanded its portfolio with the acquisition of the eastern section of the TJ Spojie facility in Prague's Na Balkáně district and has unveiled the winning design of the urban planning and architectural competition by OVA architekti. The project involves the construction of approximately 250 apartments and the transformation of the area into a new residential and leisure district of the city. The international architectural competition for the new centre of Spindlerův Mlýn has also moved forward, with eight teams advancing to the second phase, where their designs will be further developed.

In Slovakia, development of the Southbank project in Bratislava continues, with work having begun on the regeneration of the riverside forest park in cooperation with the City of Bratislava and JTRE. The project confirms the company's intention to gradually open up the site to the public and to transform it even before the construction begins.

At the same time, Penta Real Estate is actively involved in the professional debate concerning future forms of housing, including through its participation in a conference focusing on co-living and rental housing. Thanks to this approach, the company is further expanding its expertise in alternative residential segments and responding to changing market needs and long-term trends in the housing sector.
